Television has a dramatic effect on society. In today's world violence is almost always depicted on the T.V. screen. Most movies and television programs contain violence. Children's programs also contain a large amount of fighting and killing. The children today believe that violence is a normal thing. How can adults teach them what is right and wrong when there are television programs showing the children that it is normal to be violent? This will hurt society. Children will grow up to be violent and show no respect for others.

Children are not the only people violent programs have an effect on. Adults are also effected by violence. The movie theaters contain almost nothing but violent movies. These movies may be action packed and be interesting to watch, but it promotes violence. Some people may not be affected by the movies, but some will be. People cannot be trusted. Society is "ruined" by those people who take violent movies and programs to heart. Society will be inflicted with killing and fighting.

With all the violence on television, society will be a scary place. By promoting more educational programs, society may become better and more intelligent. ~~people~~ People can better society by refusing to watch violent programs on T.V.

BEGIN YOUR ANSWER TO QUESTION 1 HERE.

Entertainment does not have the capacity to ~~can~~ ruin our society. Entertainment is a new form of relaxation for those who work steady jobs throughout the week. For example, baseball is America's favorite pastime and a large form of entertainment. Baseball is a social gathering that brings people together to enjoy time. Going to the ballpark for most people is a day of relaxing and just sitting back and enjoying the game. Another form of entertainment for most people is watching television. For most individuals watching television is a normal habit and form of entertainment after a long, hard day at work. It allows them to sit back and in a chair, relax, and enjoy some time to rest while watching their favorite television shows. Through these two examples you can clearly see that entertainment does not ruin society at all. The capacity to ruin society is upheld ~~by~~ by the individuals who do not have jobs, and by those who seek entertainment from hurting somebody or watching somebody be hurt. This is not the form of entertainment ~~so~~ that most individuals believe is entertaining. Going camping, spending a day at the lake, watching sports and television, going to movies, and many other forms of entertainment as most see it do not have the capacity to ruin society. Happiness is drawn from entertainment and these social events. How could happiness be poisoned by ~~so~~ what all Americans love to do? Entertainment will never, and has never had the capacity "to overturn all morality, to poison the springs of domestic happiness, to dissolve the ties of our social order, and to involve our country in ruin."
